MEMORANDUM FOR: Director, Foreign Broadcast Information Service
THROUGH: Chief, Operations Group
SUBJECT: Monthly Report -- Tel Aviv Bureau -- January 1984

I. GENERAL

Progress continued in fortifying the embassy's defenses against car bombings and other types of attacks. Work completed to date includes a 9-foot concrete wall at the rear of the embassy; reinforcement of the embassy wall adjacent to the underground parking lot ramp; the erection of metal gates in the parking lot; the emplacement of blast deflectors at the front of the embassy. The more stringent security measures are also being felt by embassy visitors. Closer scrutiny is given to parcels and handbags when entering the building, and vehicle parking near the embassy has been eliminated.

Despite all the security measures in the past several months, the bureau was forced to evacuate due to a bomb threat on 15 January.

The first indications of construction are beginning to appear at the new office site. Work has begun on the installation of the dedicated air conditioning system, and the reinforced walls at the entrance and for the vault have been erected. The erection of the antenna roof system will begin within a couple of weeks.

HEBREW SECTION

It was a busy month for the section on a number of fronts. The new year began with Yehuda Dominitz, head of the Jewish Agency Immigration Department, letting the cat out of the bag about the secret airlift of 25,000 Ethiopian Jews to Israel. The revelation, officially confirmed 3 days later, and subsequent accusations and denials, may well have put the whole program in jeopardy.

More significant were developments in Lebanon. Although the Israeli leaders had seriously debated the issue openly for months, they seemed to have taken a number of people by surprise on 14 January when the Cabinet decided on a three-phase withdrawal. The on-again off-again talks in Al-Naqurah took on a different character with the debate switching from whether to when the Israelis would withdraw, with the Lebanese demanding a specific timetable and coordination to give its forces and that of UNIFIL time to prepare to take over the area to be evacuated by the IDF.

The IDF on the other hand, has specified only the first phase calling for withdrawal in the western sector, the Sidon area, to the Litani-al-Nabatiyah area within 5 to 6 weeks (18 February). After that, the Cabinet will assess the situation before beginning phase two which would see the IDF withdrawal to the Hasbayya area and later phase three which would see the IDF deploy along the international border with Lebanon. What will happen after the withdrawal has been the subject of great speculation but the Israeli line has generally been that security in Lebanon is a problem the Lebanese will have to handle, and Israel reserves the right to reenter Lebanon to protect the Galilee settlements.

Toward the end of the month as the end of the first economic package deal came into sight, pressure was on to come up with an economic plan. On 23 January, after 4 days and nights of long and arduous negotiations covering almost every aspect of economic activity, an 8-month agreement was hammered out calling for, among other things, a 7.5% drop in workers wages, significant cuts in subsidies, and minimum compensation of workers.

On the Egyptian front, 3 days of talks were held in Beersheba on the Tabah issue. The main issues in dispute were not resolved, but the sides agreed to continue the talks at a venue and time to be determined by political channels.

TURKISH SECTION

Turkish and Greek Cypriot leaders held their long-awaited summit in New York from 17 to 20 January. In numerous statements the Turkish Cypriots had made it clear that they were looking for a signature on the document drawn up by UN Secretary General Perez de Cuellar as a result of the proximity talks he had conducted. The Greeks Cypriots refused to sign without negotiating a number of points in the document. Thus the summit broke up with the Turkish Cypriots saying that any new negotiations would have to start from scratch. The Turkish Cypriots subsequently announced that elections would be held on 23 June.

B. Lateral Services

The Hebrew section translated for DCM Flaten a Jerusalem radio report on Donald Regan's criticism of Israel's economy.

The bureau supplied duplicate of Political Section's file to the U.S. team present at the Beersheba talks on Tabah.
